Can We Place Any Statements Exactly Below break; And continue; ? yes or no

No, in Java, you cannot place any statements immediately below the break and continue statements on the same line. These statements are meant to control the flow of loops, and they should be followed by a new line and proper indentation before adding any additional statements.

Break key word:

```
1
2 public class Veeru
3 {
4     public static void main(String[] args)
5     {
6         for(int i=0; i<6; i++)
7         {
8             System.out.println("Veeru");
9             if(i==3)
10            {
11                break;
12                System.out.println("hyy");
13            }
14        }
15    }
16 }
17
```

Continue key word:

```
1
2 public class Veeru
3 {
4     public static void main(String[] args)
5     {
6         for(int i=0; i<6; i++)
7         {
8             System.out.println("Veeru");
9             if(i==3)
10            {
11                continue;
12                System.out.println("hyy");
